GOOD SERVICE WITH US TAKES FIRST PLACE

We mean by this prompt, personal attention to your drug wants.

Next in order is quality. We will not sacrifice quality to price.

In other words we will not stock the goods bearing the label of the cheap manufacturer.

The drugs we buy must bear the label of the few "old line" or reputable manufacturers.

The price you pay is the same. But the quality and the results you get are better.

Try The Owl way. Learn of our plan; good quality, full measure, fair dealing.

British Brook, property of Hermann, but now residing at Lamesa, was attending court here this week. Brook served for a long time as a member of our commissioners' court and he was a good one. We have just leased him to Dawson county, and hope to get him back before long.

Each school district had 45 schools last year, and has 72 this year. If all the districts in the country have increased at that rate, we'll have to build larger school houses.

Back From El Paso.
Mr. H. P. Price returned Sunday from a day of three weeks in El Paso and his health is greatly improved. He has come back to go vigorously into his campaign for the Legislature and is in fine trim for running.

He says the people in El Paso are more patriotic than the Mexican citizens. There only real war that happens up in and down on democratic lines. The people in the country and in the smaller towns are more or less neutral; they are not so well prepared.

Conditions are not as bad there as the press reports indicate. There are thousands of citizens that are divorced and passed by as idle and worthless. This Americans are not aware of the diversity of the Mexican communities at Juarez and there is not as much passing over the line as in former years.

The Dog Poisoning Campaign.

Up to the time of writing there has not been a day passed that has not seen demands for poisoned grain and the work is still going on. Over 1300 of the supply of 1400 boxes of strichine have been distributed and if there is a demand another order will be needed. Twelve hundred boxes were disposed of at $1.00 per ounce and the remaining 200 ounces were raised to $1.10, but this addition was readily paid, it being so much less than the regular retail cost of strichine.

What has the campaign meant to San Saba county? Here are a few figures:

uses 575 bushels of grain poisoned; $10,000 does poisoned; 16 bales to the acre; $6,000 acres, a conservatively average of three dogs to the hole 2,200,000 dogs. Figure that six dogs eat and destroy enough grass and feed for one animal and you see the enormous herd of 455,000 head of stock being fed off the grass that will be saved as a result of the prairie dog campaign in Henry county.

The County Commissioners advanced $465.25 to pay for the first order of poison. They have received back $365.25 and the other $100 is held in the bank to ease another order if demanded. The Commissioners action has meant the actual cash advance of $200 to the farmers and land owners of the county on the purchase cost of the strichine in addition to the saving of the grass that can scarcely be estimated, but which will be less than $100,000.

The cost of killing the dogs, poison and labor amount to about six cents per acre.

Has everybody killed their dogs? No yet. There seems to be some folks who are waiting to be forced by the law that becomes operative next year, when an officer will be able to do the work and collect cost. Some seem to be determined to re-populate their neighbor's lands where the dogs have been killed. A case of six acres of a section of land, surrounded by thirty farmers who have killed, have entreated the owner of that section to kill his dogs. But he is not ready yet; in other words he refuses to kill with the result that his dogs will go over into the lands and make the farmers to kill again next year. Is there a remedy? Each farmer around this section can by law collect $2.50 per month, whilst the dogs are entering their lands. It will pay the expense of the section to kill his dogs now, rather than pay something like $15 per month for a year or more.

There are a number of such cases, and it certainly reflects on the neighborhood spirit of any adjoining owner who has so little concern for his neighbor's property as to cause it to be destroyed.

Mr. Price is in McAllen every day and is meeting the demand for poison

Everybody who are going to kill their dogs should at once send him their orders. In a few days the present supply will be exhausted and if there is sufficient demand another supply will be secured. It will be well, however to communicate with Mr. Price at once so that he will know the intention of those who have not already acted. The coming of green grass makes no difference to the killing. The dogs can be killed just as well in spring and summer as in winter.
